2012 Missouri Communications Conference

Missouri Office of Homeland Security

September 19-21, 2012

Conference Information

The Missouri Department of Public Safety, Office of Homeland Security, in conjunction with numerous federal, state and local organizations, is proud to sponsor the 2012 Missouri Communications Conference.

As technology changes and the ever increasing demand for professional service in the public sector of communications grow, we must take the opportunity to train and maintain our own professional standards.

Disaster planning and response is one critical aspect of that personal growth and training. The specialized training for 9-1-1 communications operators is being offered in the hopes of meeting the needs of our communities, large and small.

Missouri emergency services can see interoperable communications on the horizon. It is in our best interest to stay abreast of changes and be prepared to move forward as technology and new systems come on line. We will work together at this conference to prepare for what the future holds.

Along with a variety of opportunities to learn and discuss topics that are relevant to interoperable communications, you will also be able to network with communications experts throughout the State and preview state-of-the-art equipment from exhibitors.

Your time and attendance at this conference is appreciated. We look forward to establishing partnerships as we grow in experience and expertise.
